Quarter 2 – Module 2:

Opinion-Marking Signals

Introductory Message

This Self-Learning Module (SLM) is prepared so that you, our dear learners, can continue your studies and learn while at home. Activities, questions, directions, exercises, and discussions are carefully stated for you to understand each lesson.

Each SLM is composed of different parts. Each part shall guide you step-by-step as you discover and understand the lesson prepared for you.

Pre-tests are provided to measure your prior knowledge on lessons in each SLM. This will tell you if you need to proceed on completing this module or if you need to ask your facilitator or your teacher's assistance for better understanding of the lesson. At the end of each module, you need to answer the post-test to self-check your learning. Answer keys are provided for each activity and test. We trust that you will be honest in using these.

In addition to the material in the main text, Notes to the Teacher are also provided to our facilitators and parents for strategies and reminders on how they can best help you on your home-based learning.

Please use this module with care. Do not put unnecessary marks on any part of this SLM. Use a separate sheet of paper in answering the exercises and tests. And read the instructions carefully before performing each task.

If you have any questions in using this SLM or any difficulty in answering the tasks in this module, do not hesitate to consult your teacher or facilitator.

Thank you.

What I Need to Know

This module is intentionally made for you. It is here to help you share your ideas using opinion-marking signals. The scope of this module permits you to use opinion-marking signals in many different learning situations. Embrace this module and enjoy the learning adventure that awaits you.

After going through this module, you are expected to learn one of the Most Essential Learning Competencies (MELC), which is to use opinion-marking signals to share ideas.

Specifically, you are going to do the following:

- identify the opinion-marking signals used in sentences and paragraphs;
- use different opinion-marking signals in writing sentences and in completing dialogues and story presented;
- write an essay or make a video-advertisement using opinion-marking signals; and
- express appreciation of a story about perseverance using opinion-marking signals.

What I Know

In this part of the module, your background knowledge about the use of opinion-marking signals will be tested. After taking this test, your answers will be checked. If you get a perfect score, you can skip the module. However, if you get a score below 15, you must proceed and accomplish all the activities in this module. Take note of your mistakes and look for the correct answers, as you go through this module.

Opinion-Marking Signals

What's In

Now, you are going to recall your learning about visual-verbal relationship from the previous lesson.

Directions: Read the excerpt of a survey news, then answer the questions that follow on a separate sheet of paper.

268 students walk their way to school daily

By Carlito Migullas

The Hilltop Views staff conducted a survey to identify the number of students who walk their way to school. The survey involved 268 or 14.4% of the 1,860 students of San Luis National High School (SLNHS). It was found out that 142 students have to walk for three (3) km., 57 students for four (4) km., and the other 69 students for seven (7) km. or more in order to get to school.

What's New

As you go through this module, you will learn the use of opinion-marking signals through the given texts and illustrations, and through sharing your ideas.

Look at the picture below.

Sasin, Tipchai. The Bath. n.d. Wikimedia Commons accessed July 1, 2020 https://cdn.pixabay.com/photo/2016/11/14/05/29/children-1822704_960_720.jpg

How do you feel about the children in the picture?

- I feel happy that they are happy.
- I love the way they share their laughter.

Why do you think the children are happy?

- I think they are happy because they got time to play.
- I believe they are happy because they love to swim.

For you, is it safe for them to play in the river?

- For me, it is safe if the water is not deep.
- In my opinion, it is not safe unless their parents are around to watch over them.

Have you noticed the underlined words?

How are they used in the sentences?

The underlined words above are called opinion-marking signals.

What is It

In this lesson, you will learn how to express opinions using opinion-marking signals.

Opinions refer to personal beliefs (Donnchaidh, 2020). They tell about how someone feels, thinks, or takes a stand about something. They are influenced by a person's experiences, background knowledge, emotions, and preferences. Others may agree or disagree with opinions, but they may not prove or disprove them.

The group of words that introduces opinions are called opinion-marking signals. They are used as signal words that will help express and identify opinions. They are usually written in the beginning part of a sentence.

Below are examples of opinion-marking signals.

Maybe...	Perhaps...	Probably...
I think...	I believe...	I feel...
I hope...	I should...	I love...
I hate...	The best...	It seems...
My favorite...	For me...	In my opinion...
In my experience...	From my point of view...	It is my belief...
I am convinced that...	I am confident that...	I am certain that...
From what I know...	I must admit that...	I take the view that...
I might be wrong, but...	If I am not mistaken...	I cannot deny that...

The following sentences express opinions using the opinion-marking signals.

- I feel happy about being a Filipino.
- It seems that Filipinos have strong family ties.
- From what I know, Filipinos are popular for being hospitable.
- Personally, I think that Filipinos give importance to education.
- Maybe Filipinos are resilient because they find ways to survive.
- In my experience, Filipino families go to church and pray together.
- I hope Filipino children will continue to respect their elders by saying "po" and "opo".
- It is a belief of the Filipinos that when you respect others, they will respect you as well.

In the given sentences, how are the opinion-marking signals used?

Sentence A uses the opinion marking signal I feel. It tells about a personal feeling towards being a Filipino.

In sentence B, the opinion-marking signal used is It seems. This phrase gives an idea that the opinion is expressed in a less assertive or forceful way.

The opinion-marking signal used in sentence C is From what I know. This statement shows that the speaker is expressing an opinion based on background knowledge.

I think is the opinion-marking signal used in sentence D. This phrase emphasizes the standpoint of a person. The sentence is stated based on one's personal nature.

Sentence E uses the opinion-marking signal Maybe to express a mere possibility.

In sentence F, the opinion-marking signal used is In my experience. The speaker expresses an opinion that is based on a real and first-hand experience.

The opinion-marking signal used in sentence G is I hope. This phrase helps show the expectation and desires of the speaker.

It is the belief (of the Filipinos) is the opinion-marking signal used in sentence H. The sentence expresses a practice that Filipinos accept as true or real.

Take note of the different opinion-marking signals used in the given sentences. These signal words or phrases are used in different manners and for different purposes. However, there are certain opinion-marking signals that can be used in the same manner and for the same purpose like maybe and probably, based on my experience and in my experience, and I am certain that and I am sure that.

This time, let us try to share thoughts about the given pictures below.

Naranjo, Dominic S. The Farmer.
2020

What can you say about the farmer?

- Maybe, the farmer worked all day in his field.

What do you think will happen to his field after a few months?

- I think his field will be covered with rice plants after a few months.

Why is the farmer working alone?

- Perhaps, he does not have enough money to pay for other people to plow his field.

What are the opinion-marking signals used in the sentences?

The opinion-marking signals used are Maybe, I think, and Perhaps.

- Maybe is used to express the opinion that, possibly, the farmer worked all day.
- I think is used to express the opinion in a more personal way.
- In addition, Perhaps is used to express the opinion in a doubtful way.

Let us try another one.

Beltran, Romar. The Scout. 2020

In your experience, what activities did you do in a scouting event?

- In my experience, we did tent-building, nature-hunting, and nighttime hiking.
- If I am not mistaken, we did log lifting and played team-building games.

How do you feel about camping?

- I love camping because it is full of fun.
- I feel that camping is boring since I am not an adventurous person.

What opinion-marking signals are used in the sentences?

The opinion-marking signals used are In my experience, If I am not mistaken, I love, and I feel.

- In my experience is used to express an opinion that is based on a personal encounter.
- On the other hand, If I am not mistaken is used to express an uncertain opinion.
- Furthermore, I love and I feel are used to express opinions that are based on the emotions or feelings of a person.

Where are opinion-marking signals usually written?

How are opinions made?

Opinion-marking signals are usually written at the beginning part of the sentence.

In general, opinions are made with the use of opinion-marking signals. They are based on personal experiences, background knowledge, emotions, and preferences. It is important to learn and use correctly the different opinion-marking signals because it will add information to personal thoughts, perceptions, or judgments about something. It can also be used to help someone express agreement or assertion in the right way.

What's More

In this part of the module, you will practice using opinion-marking signals in sharing your ideas.

Activity 1: Search for Signal Words

Directions: Read the essay below that tells different opinions about the Philippines. While reading, list down the opinion-marking signals used in the essay. Write them on a separate sheet of paper.

Why Many Tourists Visit the Philippines?

by Fanny Andrea B. Naranjo

The Philippines is one of the most visited countries in the world. There are numerous good reasons why many tourists visit the Philippines.

Firstly, I believe that the Philippines is known for its hospitable people. Filipinos are very welcoming and accommodating. I am certain that these Filipino characteristics are very attractive to many foreigners.

In my experience, Filipinos are always ready to help other people in need. They are generous. They always share with others, even if sometimes they only have little. It is their belief that sharing is loving.

Also, many tourists think that the Philippines has the most beautiful islands and beaches. It has Palawan, Bohol, Siargao, Leyte, and Boracay, to name a few. They take the view that Philippine islands and beaches are breathtaking, and there are a lot of sea adventures to experience and delicious local foods. Also, the Philippines has a unique culture. I cannot deny that I agree with all these thoughts.

In conclusion, I am convinced that many foreigners love the Philippines. That is why, they continue to visit the country. Others even choose to stay.

- Do you agree with the ideas presented in the essay?
- In your opinion, why do many tourists visit our country?
